COMPULSORY PRAYER.

An Adventure of Tom Wood, the Confederate Scout.

"Well, now, tell us, old friend, when scouting inside of the enemy's lines, did anybody ever detect you as confederate spy. "Never. But I was mighty near being caught up once, and the only way I escaped was by being mistook for my brother Jim." Here the smile on his face spread into a broad grin, and the old man chuckled as hurries you onward, and you are forced to his mind went back to the serio-comical adventure. Tom Wood or "Uncle Tommy," as he was known in General Lee's camp, had never been with the army in Flanders, but he had was, perhaps, as wicked a hunter as thh dining room, with its grotesque corever shouldered a rifle.

I would take my Christmas frolic by house, with its antique wainscoting from the dismantled palace of Linlithgow making a little scout out to my home in Randolph county. We were camp ed at Warm springs, and had nothing to do in camp, and I felt lonesome ike. As Christmas drew on I got to thinking about my old woman and the children at home-they were away inside the lines of the enemy-and I thought that Christmas would appear a museum of curiosities-at the fixed rate more like Christmas to them of one shilling a head. If a charge must if I could unexpetedly drop down among them. So I shouldered my old gun and away I went, out through I got along first-rate on my way out; saw my family, and after enjoying myself for a season started back. "Of course I kept out of the way

One night in St Mary s aisle, the most beautiful I came to the Greenbrier river, and just as dark came on a heavy sleet tors the Haliburtons of Newmains. (oncset in. I was cold, tired and hungry owners of the Abbey) are buried here; and the only house where I could find shelter was the house of Billy Johnson, whom I knew to be the most ultra union man in all that region. I a more direct road, but the longer one had no personal acquaintance with is much to be preferred on he score of him, and didn't think that he had ever seen me, so I concluded to risk myself under his roof that night any way. It was my purpose to give ward toward Melrose and downward to him a fictitious name, for I felt pretty sure that if he discovered that I was Tom Wood, the rebel scout, I would not live to see daylight. Mustering up courage, and helped along by the wet and cold, I sought refuge under Johnson's roof and was hospitably received. While sitting by the fire warming myself, Johnson first symptoms is generally a hacking kept looking into my tace very earnestly, when all at once he arose from

You see Jim is a Methodist, and a leader in the church, and so is Johnson, and that's how he called me 'Brother Wood.' And then he set down and talked over old times and the camp-meeting in the hills, and as the old man was willing to do most of the talking, I was willing for "I got along very well untill we sot to supper, when Johnson called on me to say grace.
